Women's Health Physical Therapy

What is pelvic floor physical therapy?

Pelvic floor physical therapy is a specialized area of PT that addresses pelvic floor dysfunction. Two main types of pelvic floor dysfunction exist; the first involves weakness of the pelvic floor muscles resulting in incontinence and the second involves pelvic floor muscle spasms that result in pain and possibly incontinence.

What is the pelvic floor?

The pelvic floor is a group of skeletal muscles that is the bottom of your inner core. These muscles are located at the bottom of the trunk and run from the pubic bone to the tailbone wrapping around the vaginal and rectal openings. The pelvic floor has 4 primary functions that are extremely important in life. These functions are:

- 1. Supportive: These muscles act to support all the pelvic organs (the bladder, urethra, uterus, vagina and the rectum).
- 2. Stabilization: If your pelvic floor muscles become weak you can develop compensatory patterns of movement and substitute inappropriate muscles which can lead to faulty movement patterns and possibly pain.
- 3. Sphincteric: These muscles help prevent the involuntary loss of gas, urine, or bowel.
- 4. Sexual functioning.

What are common complaints with pelvic floor dysfunction?

Examples of typical complaints include:

- Involuntary loss of urine or stool
- Deep pain in the low back that can radiate to the abdomen, groin, hips and/or legs
- Vaginal pain and or pain with sex
- Pain with urination, bowel movements, sitting, standing or walking
- Urinary urgency and frequency
- Rectal pain
- Pelvic pressure or a falling out feeling

What should you expect?

On your first visit a thorough evaluation will be completed. Evaluations include thorough history taking, postural assessment, range of motion measurements, palpation of key muscles of the pelvis and surrounding areas, strength testing, and analysis of movement patterns and structural alignment of the body. Often times it is necessary to complete an internal pelvic exam to assess the pelvic floor musculature. Once this is completed, all of the evaluation findings will be discussed with you, goals are set and treatment approaches are determined.

How is pelvic floor dysfunction treated?

Specific treatment approaches used by pelvic floor physical therapists may vary according to the dysfunction determined by the evaluation. These approaches include but are not limited to the following:

- 1. Manual Therapy: Manual therapy may be used to realign the bones of the pelvis or spine. It is also used to release tension in the muscles that attach to the pelvis, including the pelvic floor muscles. Techniques such as myofascial release, trigger point release, soft tissue mobilization and scar mobilization, if applicable are commonly used. When it is found that internal restrictions are present, whether it be a muscle spasm, scar tissue, fascial restriction or weakness, the same techniques can be used internally.
- 2. Strengthening: If it is determined that there is weakness present which is typically the case with incontinence, then this is addressed with a specific exercise program tailored to meet the needs and abilities of each individual.
- 3. Neuromuscular re-education with biofeedback: Biofeedback is a mechanism where you can monitor how much electrical activity is being generated by the pelvic floor muscles. The goal is to get the pelvic floor muscles to fire with proper timing and force. A patient is taught specific Kegel exercises while being monitored via a connection to a computer through the use of a vaginal or rectal sensor. Biofeedback can also be used to help a patient learn how to stop the pelvic floor from being in spasm. Objective feedback on a monitor facilitates this relaxation process.
- 4. Patient Education and home program: Education is probably the most important element of your therapy. You will be taught how and why your problem developed as well as prevention of further dysfunction. In order to achieve long term carryover of this type of therapy, you will need to be an active participant by following through with an individualized home exercise program that will be taught to you.

Office No-Show and Late Arrival Policies

No-Show/Late Cancellations: Appointment time slots are precious and very much in demand for our office. In an effort to serve you better, we ask for proper notice for any cancellation. Patients failing to provide at least a 24-hour notice will be charged for the full initial evaluation fee of $175.00. Follow-up visits not cancelled 4 hours prior will be subject to a late cancellation fee of $75.00.

Late Arrivals: We make every effort to be on time for all our appointments. Unfortunately, when even one patient arrives late, it can throw off the entire schedule for that session. In addition, rushing or "squeezing in" an appointment shortchanges the patient and contributes to decreased quality of care (and increases medical errors). In light of this, at the discretion of the treating therapist, patients arriving more than 10 minutes late may be asked to reschedule for another day or may be offered another appointment time the same day if there is one available. The late arrival to the appointment will be considered a no-show, therefore the $75.00 fee will apply and will have to be paid before the next appointment.

In addition, we reserve the right to terminate treatment after two no-shows, two cancellations or three late arrivals.

I have read, understand and agree to this no-show, late cancellation and late arrival policy.
